Los Angeles County
DEPARTMENT OF Human Resources
THE AGENCY
Los Angeles County Health Agency

The Los Angeles County Health Agency is a dynamic, innovative organization created in 2015 with the core purpose of improving the individual and community health and wellbeing of Los Angeles County residents.

By strategically identifying and carefully aligning initiatives of the Departments of Health Services, Mental Health, and Public Health, the Health Agency unifies the County’s physical, behavioral, and public health services to deliver an integrated system of care.

Department of Health Services
The nation’s second largest municipal health system that encompasses four hospitals, two multi-disciplinary ambulatory care centers, six comprehensive health centers, probation infirmaries, rehabilitation centers, community health centers, and numerous health clinics that provide the community with a broad range of hospital, trauma, emergency, and outpatient care, programs, and services.

Department of Mental Health
The nation’s largest municipal mental health system that delivers a continuum of care through emergency, intensive outreach and triage teams focused on engaging our most vulnerable clients and a network of almost 400 directly operated and contracted clinics focused on providing high quality, “whatever it takes” recovery-oriented programming.

Department of Public Health
The nation’s largest county public health department that operates 39 programs, 14 clinics, and a managed care network of substance use disorder providers to protect and benefit the public’s health by ensuring equitable access to the resources and opportunities needed to promote optimal health and well-being.

The promise of the Health Agency is that by being “together,” these three Departments can streamline access and enhance the customer experience for individuals who need services from more than one Department or specialty area. The Health Agency aims to strengthen all three Departments while enabling each one to remain unique and independent as an operational entity.
NOTEWORTHY SUCCESSES

Guided by the mission to “...promote healthy people living in healthy communities,” the Health Agency has achieved noteworthy success in its first two years.

- Deployed nearly 1,500 employees to conduct door-to-door outreach to 17,000 homes affected by the lead contamination from the Exide Battery Recycling Plant.
- Created and established the new Office of Diversion and Re-entry, which diverted and case managed over 600 persons from jail into mental health and substance use treatment centers.
- Launched a Health Agency Call Center, a Drug Medi-Cal Organized Delivery System, Housing for Health, and an expanded eConsult specialty consult and diagnostic platform.
- Decreased overcrowding of psychiatric emergency rooms through increase use of mental health urgent cares.
- Launched the Center for Health Equity to eliminate inequities in health outcomes.

These are just a few of the early successes, and the Health Agency is inspired to accomplish more as it matures as an organization.

The creation of the Health Agency represents a strategic shift in the County’s healthcare delivery system, and the transformation continues as the Agency seeks to further adapt to the ever-changing healthcare landscape. Through the aligned efforts of the three Departments, the Health Agency is poised to more strongly address social determinants of health such as poverty, addiction, and homelessness, and more efficiently collaborate on priority issues such as health equity; trauma-informed services; supportive housing; integrated health; substance abuse and behavioral health treatment to justice and vulnerable populations; recuperative care beds; crisis residential opportunities; and sobering centers. These areas are particularly critical to the residents of Los Angeles County, of which approximately 2 million are uninsured, medically indigent, working poor, or without access to other health care.

In comprising these three departments, the Los Angeles County Health Agency is positioned to have impact unlike that of most other organizations - impact on the approximately 750,000 individuals who receive service each year from the Agency and its partners, as well as influence on the direction of healthcare policy and reform locally and nationwide.

With the collective power of a nearly 7 billion dollar budget among the three Departments and the combined strength of their 35,000 employees who foster excellence in the delivery of service, the Health Agency serves to maximize opportunities for healthcare innovation and integration for the benefit of all Los Angeles County residents.
THE OPPORTUNITY

To promote healthy people living in healthy communities.

The County of Los Angeles is seeking a confident “hands on” visionary with a strong leadership acumen who is accustomed to operating in a robust and dynamic healthcare environment. This transformational leader will drive a focused strategy for the Health Agency that embraces innovation, integration, and stakeholder alignment as means to improve health outcomes, provide coordinated care, and leverage economies of scale. The Agency Director will prioritize, organize, and administer the functions, activities, and services of the Agency to ensure they form an aligned and integrated departmental model of physical health, public health, and mental/behavioral health care. He or she will have a broad spectrum of experience and understanding to exercise sound and responsible decision-making in an organization undergoing vast cultural shift.

The Health Agency Director (“Director”) reports directly to the five-member Board of Supervisors. The Heads of the Departments of Health Services, Mental Health, and Public Health (“Department Heads”) each report directly to the Board of Supervisors as well, and maintain their separate status as County Departments. As to Agency issues, e.g. integrated health and supportive services across Agency Departments, each Department Head will serve under the direction of the Agency Director. (See Chapter 2.73 of the Los Angeles County Code - Los Angeles County Health Agency). Further, each Department Head is charged with collaborating with the Agency Director on programmatic and multi-department matters overseen by the Agency. These matters include Board-supported priorities relevant to community health and well-being, and Agency-driven initiatives and programs that enhance health integration and provide innovative ways to improve overall health in the County.

The three Department Heads also report directly to the Board. In addition, they are charged with collaborating with the Agency Director on programmatic and multi-department matters overseen by the Agency. These matters include Board-supported priorities relevant to community health and well-being, and Agency-driven initiatives and programs that enhance health integration and provide innovative ways to improve overall health in the County.

The Agency Director position represents an extraordinary, once-in-a-lifetime career opportunity for the healthcare leader who wants to directly influence and improve the quality and accessibility of healthcare provided to a community of millions in the Los Angeles County area. As national policies, funding streams, and conditions on the ground continue to evolve, this leader will endeavor to pioneer new models for success in building and executing comprehensive plans that will support and empower the region.
