

County of Los Angeles Board of Supervisors

SUPERVISOR EDMUND H. BOYD

Term: 1866 – 1868
District: Not Applicable
Date of Birth: 1836
Death: Unknown

Edmund H. Boyd served one term as county supervisor. He was elected to office in 1866.

Boyd was born in Alabama in 1836 and spent his youth on the family farm. In the 1850s he moved to California and bought land in the Whittier area known as "Los Nietos" and began farming.

After leaving the Board of Supervisors, Boyd returned to the private sector. His capitalistic ventures included buying real estate and was part of a company that tried unsuccessfully to build a harbor out of the lagoons that today comprise the Ballona Creek in Santa Monica/Culver City area.
