

PROBATION RECRUITMENT SEEKS YOUR ASSISTANCE!

A TALK WITH RECRUITMENT MANAGER LEANNE STEINHAUS

Did you know that the Probation Department has a recruiting unit? Meet Assistant Director Leanne Steinhaus, the Los Angeles County Probation Department's Recruitment Manager. Director Steinhaus has been a dedicated member of our probation family for 31 years. For the past three years, she has served as the Recruitment Manager. Previously, she served as a Supervising Deputy Probation officer for 17 years, led the Probation Training Academy, and on numerous occasions, served as a hiring interview panelist and committee member.

Probation Recruitment needs your help! Director Steinhaus seeks to build a diverse employee recruitment team of experienced individuals willing to volunteer their time with good public speaking and presentation skills. Team members can be sworn and non-sworn staff from various Department operations. "I'm looking for staff that believes in the Department, its core values, and what we are striving towards," she shared, "Recruitment is seeking current Probation employees, who are eager to connect with potential hires."

The employees who volunteer to serve as part of the recruitment team will speak on employment panels, at Career Fairs, Industry Chats, staff in-person exhibit booths, and engage with community members at various Los Angeles County events. Their charge is to educate potential applicants on the Department's mission and provide information on job duties, career paths, the application and hiring process, salaries, and benefits.

If you are interested in assisting the recruitment team, please email a letter of interest to Director Leanne Steinhaus at Leanne.Steinhaus@probation.lacounty.gov. Be advised that your submission does not guarantee your selection. Human Resources and Management must approve interested staff. If selected to join the team, additional training and coaching will be provided.
