

KAREN'S TREND TIP: It's never too early to start thinking about the next fashion season, is it? So, here we are, talking about the colors for fall and winter. I blame the designers and fashion forecasters at New York Fashion Week!

In my last post, I shared five of the ten hottest colors for the upcoming season. Now, here are the remaining five colors. It's certainly a reason to freshen up and revitalize that wardrobe of yours!

Biscay Bay: This cool and soothing teal is reminiscent of serene, tropical waters. The blue-green color is inviting and pleasant.

Reflecting Pond: A truly, deep dark shade of blue with a hint of rich purple, this serious hue is composed and thoughtful.

Cadmium Orange: Nothing says fun like this shade of orange. Some say it's a throwback to the '60s and '70s. This playful, fun, optimistic color is full of warmth and bold drama. It can definitely be worn alone or as a strikingly bold contrast against another color.

Cashmere Rose: A gentle and soft pink, this hue is rich and upscale. People liken this color to mauve and consider it a nod to the '60s. It is a shade of pink that works well with many skin tones.

Amethyst Orchid: A soft purple, this color is unique, vibrant and romantic. You can't go wrong with this intriguing shade.
