II. DISCUSSIONS

3. County of Los Angeles Efforts to Facilitate Economic Opportunity and Poverty Alleviation and Discussion on the Intersection with the Prevention and Promotion Systems Governing Committees (PPSGC's) Work. (24-3460)
- Kristina Meza, Executive Director, Poverty Alleviation Initiative (PAI), Policy Implementation and Alignment Branch, County of Los Angeles
 - Carrie D. Miller, Ph.D. Senior Manager, Policy Implementation and Alignment Branch, County of Los Angeles
 - Kelly LoBianco, Director, Department of Economic Opportunity (DEO), County of Los Angeles
 - Rafael Carbajal, Director, Department of Consumer and Business Affairs, County of Los Angeles

Chair, Dr. Jackie Contreras reminded Members that based on feedback from stakeholders and the priorities of the PPSGC, it was determined that its work would be characterized by a racial justice and equity lens, by centering resident voice and choice, and facilitating economic stability, mobility, and empowerment.

Kristina Meza presented on the Poverty Alleviation Initiative (PAI), its framework and current efforts, including three Guaranteed Income Programs.

Kelly LoBianco presented that Cash Assistance programs are being launched and aligned with sector - based training. And that 20 million is being invested in High Road Training Partnership sector-based training in aerospace, healthcare, and greenspaces. Targeted outreach provided would be $1,500 in cash assistance, and that the Department of Economic Opportunity (DEO) oversees the youth public workforce system. A barrier is that workforce programs stop at output and need an extended lens.

Carrie D. Miller discussed employment as an intervention: Research shows people with severe mental health issues benefit from working, thus alleviating reliance on the mental health system. The Tax Credit project created 6.5 million dollars.

Rafael Carbajal shared that the Department of Consumer and Business Affairs (DCBA) is involved from a consumer perspective on the rising insurance rates and risk support and works with the State. And that work is done with County Counsel on price gauging.

Chair Dr. Contreras posed the following discussion questions:

1. What does it mean to center economic stability, mobility, and empowerment in our work?
2. From a prevention standpoint, how do we leverage and build on efforts currently underway?
3. What other opportunities are before us, and what opportunities can we create?

Member Dr. Ferrer expressed that elected officials gravitate toward guaranteed income programs in lieu of expanding entitlement programs and that the County needs better investment in essential programs and services. Job training and education is a better pathway for a livable wage.

Kelly LoBianco indicated that the County needs to find a way to create model employers so that they can offer livable wages to their teams, and on the entrepreneurship front, so much of LA County is gig and contract work based, so how does the County make sure there are opportunities for mobility and non-traditional pathways.

Carrie Miller discussed the idea of a one-time emergency fund and that sometimes a guaranteed income isn't needed but rather a lump sum amount to help a person in need.

Member Dr. Ferrer added that philanthropy create emergency funds for income dependent people, and it's issued as a grant and suggested looking at other parts of the country where major donors have set up funds.

Member Dr. Wong stated how difficult it is to access mental health benefits for those entitled to it. And that there is a dilemma with those that do seek employment again and lose their disability benefits, and find there is no support, especially among youth.

Mr. Carbajal shared that the DCBA is working on a type of emergency fund that can get people through one-time financial difficulties and they are working on zero interest emergency loans.

There were no in person, written, or virtual public comments.

Dr. Tamara N. Hunter, Interim Executive Director, Prevention and Promotion Systems Governing Committee (PPSGC) reported on the current state analysis that is currently underway in each domain. She asked departments to conduct their own internal assessments of their current state within the department relative to the areas of focus discussed.

Chair Dr. Contreras suggested weaving the PPSGCs thoughts into a broader conversation with the System of Care (SOC) meeting in September.

Member Dr. Ferrer expressed change strategies must be specific to the population and outcomes selected, they must be individualized and target contributing factors.
