		Oppose	Monisha Parker	The Friends of the Los Angeles County Law Library's parking fee waiver request specifically aims to eliminate the fees, not reduce them. However, there are several approaches to consider regarding parking costs at the Los Angeles County Law Library: 1. Explore alternative funding sources: The Friends organization could diversify its fundraising efforts to generate more income and potentially cover parking costs without relying solely on fee waivers. This might involve grant applications, corporate sponsorships, or individual donations. 2. Advocate for revised parking fees: The Friends could advocate to the Law Library or relevant authorities for adjusted parking fees that are more affordable for library users, potentially with tiered pricing based on usage duration. 3. Explore alternative parking options: The Friends could collaborate with the Law Library or local organizations to explore alternative parking arrangements like discounted rates at nearby parking structures or shuttle services from public transportation hubs. 4. Implement a voucher system: The Friends could create a voucher program where individuals demonstrating financial hardship could receive vouchers for a limited number of free or discounted parking sessions. 5. Encourage alternative transportation: The Friends could promote the use of public transportation, carpooling, or cycling to access the Law Library, potentially offering incentives like informational campaigns or partnerships with public transit agencies. It's important to note that implementing any of these options requires careful consideration of various factors including feasibility, potential impact on library operations, and community needs. Open communication and collaboration between the Friends, the Law Library, and potentially other stakeholders are crucial for finding effective solutions.
