11.		Favor	Aradhana Tiwari	The Sunita Jain Anti-Trafficking Initiative (SJI) of Loyola Law School is committed to advocating for policies which prevent human trafficking. SJI supports this initiative because lack of housing for pregnant and new parents will inevitably expose this community to increased violence, including sex and/or labor trafficking. Communities that are experiencing or at risk of becoming unhoused are particularly vulnerable to human trafficking as traffickers prey upon these vulnerabilities and often entrap individuals in schemes of commercial exploitation in exchange for housing assistance. This is particularly true of individuals with young children. For these reasons, SJI supports this initiative.
