Users should be informed and be allowed to opt- out. If this is a health app, why does Soluna unilaterally decide it will use information for their own internal research or share with other (unknown) entities for "research"?What if that's the feds?I do not support the county doing free marketing for an app that collects an overwhelming amount of sensitive information, including of youth and possibly minors.There have been a lot of privacy problems with health and wellness apps very well documented, including fertility apps sharing personal information with advertisers, you can look up Mozilla's research:theregister.com/2022/08/17/mozilla_pregnancy_app/ |
