

LA GENERAL: CARE WITHOUT COMPROMISE

July 13, 2026 · LA General Office of Public Relations

For generations, Los Angeles General Medical Center has cared for the people of Los Angeles — providing lifesaving treatment, training future healthcare professionals, and ensuring that world-class care is available to everyone.

A new feature in North America Outlook Magazine shares the LA General story, from our historic roots and connection to the communities we serve to the innovation, education, and excellence shaping our future.

Most importantly, it celebrates the dedicated people who make our mission possible every day.

In it, CEO Jorge Orozco — who grew up nearby and once volunteered at the hospital himself — shares the story behind LA General's evolution from one of the largest hospitals in the country to a leaner, more specialized safety-net institution serving as the backbone of care for Los Angeles. The feature touches on our teaching partnerships with Keck School of Medicine of USC, innovations like our Safer@Home care-at-home model, recent recognitions including Magnet® designation and consecutive Leapfrog "A" Safety Grades, and our vision for a more connected campus that supports health well beyond the hospital's walls.

We Are Proud to Be LA General

At the heart of the feature is a message we return to every day: safety-net care can be world-class care. That's not an aspiration at LA General — it's a promise our teams prove for our community, one patient at a time.

We are proud to be LA General. We are proud to serve Los Angeles.
