Budget Outlook

The current economic outlook for the nation and California indicate moderate growth for the remainder of 2013 and continuing into 2014. This positive economic growth has been driven by improvements in the housing market and the continued downward trend in unemployment. The housing market recovery began in early 2012, aided by historically low-interest rates and a decline in foreclosure activity. The turnaround in the housing market gained momentum towards the end of 2012 into 2013 and is expected to continue. Improvements in the housing market and the continued downward trend in unemployment have strengthened consumer confidence and increased consumer spending. As a result, we have experienced positive gains in retail sales and sales tax revenues led by increased sales of autos, gasoline, and construction materials.

The labor market is slowly improving as businesses begin to rebound, contributing to a decline in unemployment rates; however, unemployment rates in Los Angeles County remain at historically high levels.

Month	Unemployment Rate
January 2012	11.6%
November 2012	10.4%
December 2012	10.3%
January 2013	10.4%

The economic outlook, although positive, continues to face challenges and uncertainties. The impact of health care reform, sequestration, and the federal government's long-term fiscal imbalance remain to be seen. In addition, low housing inventory and tighter lending standards can potentially hinder the housing recovery. Nevertheless, economic recovery continues but the critical factor is its sustainability. We will continue to monitor economic indicators, as we move forward, throughout the budget process.

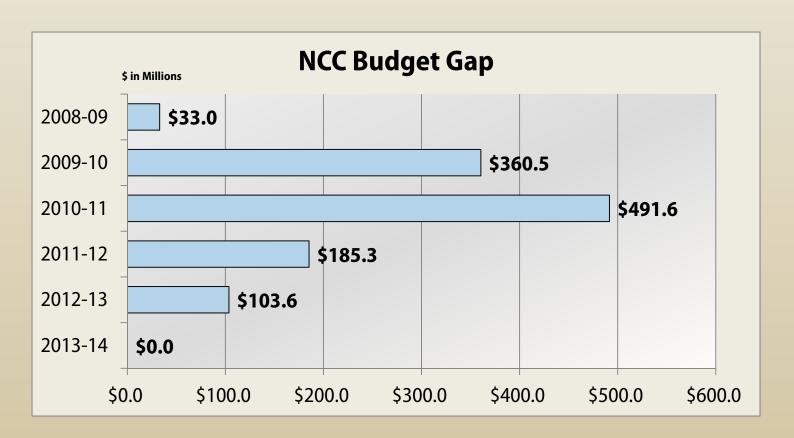

Budget Overview

For the first time in four years, the net County cost (NCC) portion of the County's budget is financed entirely with ongoing revenue sources. As a result of the recent recession, the County experienced a "cyclical" budget deficit. This occurred when the economy went into recession and County revenues declined, while spending on safety net programs and unavoidable costs increased. In order to address these problems, we made several adjustments to the County's budget including departmental curtailments, the use of one-time funding sources, the elimination of over 2,000 vacant budgeted positions, and various countywide efficiency initiatives.

For the first time in four years, the County does not have to rely on reserves or other one-time funding solutions to balance the budget. The chart below illustrates the progress that has been made in reducing our budget gap during the economic crisis.
