engage families to assist in the best way to have positive outcomes. Due to the challenges of COVID, he mentioned that some of the funding was carried over to the next fiscal year for programming and services. He also mentioned that Probation, as a beacon of light, works to make lives better every day. Through programming in the institutions, transitional programming and working with our partners, Probation helps youth become self-sufficient so that they can make better lives for themselves, as well as their families. To better provide these services, he talked about the need to have a fair evaluation of what we are doing and what we are providing. His intent moving forward is to fund those programs that show the most promising outcomes. With regards to working with the courts and communities we serve; there is a realization that we are serving youth who have been trauma impacted. With that in mind, he mentioned the need to provide trauma informed and responsive services so that we can provide the court with better community-based options. In effect, he indicated that providing better treatment, better interventions and diversions for the court to consider, other than probation or some type of detention is a necessity. He talked about looking forward and remaining focused, ensuring services and programming exists and continuing to fund those programs with the resources whether they be state, county or philanthropic, so we can continue to assist our youth clientele moving forward. Audio Time Stamp: 39:41-49:23

b. Presentation by RAND Corporation on planned JJCPA evaluation

Tom Faust, Deputy Director-Chief of Staff, Probation Department, introduced agenda item IV b Audio Time Stamp: 49:23-50:30

Stephanie Holliday, Researcher, RAND Corp., provided an overview of RAND's plan for evaluation and methodology of JJCPA programs. RAND will conduct process and outcome evaluations. The purpose of process evaluations will be to understand and assess how programs are implemented. They are important because they help establish an understanding of how a program operates and provide important context for interpreting any findings of the outcome evaluation. RAND is interested in utilization data, fidelity assessment, program staff feedback and engaging the youth and their family members to make assessments. Outcome evaluations are designed to understand the effects of the program and whether the program is having its intended affects both immediately as well as beyond the end of the program length. RAND is taking a more holistic approach to outcomes and plans to evaluate a subset of a range of three to five programs each year. Additionally, RAND hopes to consider the readiness of programs for evaluation. Based upon meeting with Probation and the Ad Hoc Subcommittee, they understand the first four programs identified included School-Based Probation, Abolish Chronic Truancy (ACT), Special Needs Court and Client Assessment Recommendation Evaluation (CARE). RAND was aware that Resource Development Associates (RDA) recently reviewed School-Based Probation and RDA set out to review the same sources that RAND would utilize. One consideration would be to wait to evaluate a program that was recently evaluated. They welcomed input about prioritizing which programs would be evaluated. For programs that are not yet ready, RAND will provide technical support to assist agencies to be positioned in a better place for evaluation in the second year or beyond. She indicated that during the meeting with the Ad Hoc Subcommittee, they shared about the role of trauma in youth and being mindful when engaging youth through the evaluation process. They will keep in mind the cultural relevance, an equity lens and how equitable outcomes are achieved. Finally, she emphasized what was discussed at JJCC's February meeting – the importance of having outcome data. She stated that there have been some delays due to COVID and that the RAND team is eager to begin their work. Audio Time Stamp: 50:45-1:09:40, 1:13:38-1:14:14, 1:14:51-1:15:47, 1:17:09-1:17:45, 1:20:38-1:23:47, 1:28:07-1:28:55

Attachment: 2020.08.21_FY 2020-21 JJCPA Funding Allocation Update 26 Aug 20_Final

Tom Faust, Deputy Director-Chief of Staff, Probation Department, introduced agenda item IV g Audio Time Stamp: 2:50:05-2:50:36

i. Correct Growth and Base Fund LAC Probation in the Amount of $1,000,000.00 for Restorative Justice Programs in Support of Intervention.

Recommendation: Continue funding Conflict Resolution via CBOs. This programming was originally funded through one-time growth funds that have been expended. Conflict Resolution and mediation is needed in all eight institutional facilities to mitigate youth violence and improve the development of youth. Estimated costs $100,000.00 per camp facility, and $200,000.00 per hall, totaling $1,000,000.00 annually.

Kim Bowman, FUSE Executive Advisor, informed everyone that it would be a two-part agenda item. Additionally, he pointed out an error in the funding allocation approved by JJCC on February 7, 2020; the sum-total was correct. However, the categorical spending between base and growth funds was incorrect. The issue was that too much money was moved for Restorative Justice to growth funding, away from base funding. Ultimately, $74,076.48 was moved back to base-funding to correct the imbalance. Audio Time Stamp: 2:50:37-2:53:48

ii. Fund LAC Commission for Children and Families in the Amount of $222,418.52 for LAC Youth Commission.

Recommend: Continue funding LAC Youth Commission. The startup funds for this Commission were originally funded through one-time growth funds, which will be expended by FY 2020-2021.
